

Why is it all the sudden NAB's concern??? No more shock jocks to censor Comrade? I live in a community of 2500 people. We don't live in a metropolis like you FCC types. We don't have 15 or 20 local stations that provide traffic and weather and if we did those stations don't transmit only the weather or traffic. We'd have to listen to their programing until they broke for the traffic or weather. Thats fine for public radio.....you get what you pay for.....and I pay for my XM traffic and weather service. When will the NAB attack accuweather.com and other websites, they provide the same that XM does, just not in the car, yet, and there are cars with satellite internet connection. Why not shut down The Weather channel on cable??? You people need to find something better to do with your time that, by the way, I'm paying you for.
